National Penn Names Dr. Daniel E. Young of Ridge Chiropractic its Customer of the Month

Boyertown, Pa. – January 23, 2012 – National Penn's Sellersville branch has named Daniel E. Young, owner of Ridge Chiropractic, its Customer of the Month for January. The bank initiative recognizes customers of the branch who have made contributions to the community through work and civic engagement.

Young, who has been serving the chiropractic needs of the community since 1989, is active with the Keystone Opportunity Center. The Montgomery County-based social service organization serves the area with educational programs, counseling, and more in its effort to encourage and assist individuals in achieving self-sufficiency.

During the holidays, Young offers his patients discounts on services for fulfilling requests made by disadvantaged members of the center. The requests are written on ornament cards and placed in a Christmas tree in Young's office. "My patients are generous and definitely do their part in giving back to those in need," said Young. "The things most requested by these folks are practical items like dishwashing soap and cleaning supplies – nothing extravagant."

Young has also served Pennridge FISH (Fellowship in Serving Humanity), a non-profit organization in Bucks County that provides services to the needy.

"Dr. Young has shown a steadfast commitment to the community and the people who live here," said Rhonda Leimbach, manager of National Penn's Sellersville branch. "We are certainly privileged to have him as a customer." Young lives locally with his wife of 30 years and their two children.
